v1 Please don't tremble now,
The world will turn out right somehow,
The damp which lines your fevered brow
Will vanish with the mist through which you peer;

v2 Do not shake so much,
There's nothing here to fear, as such,
When warmth will lend its gentler touch
To make your fevered terrors disappear;

Br1 A haunted dream, a nervous scream,
A waking in the night;
A reaching out, an end to doubt,

An everything's alright;

Br2 A warning bell, a sudden yell,
A terror deep inside,
A warm soft hand, a chasm spanned,
A friendship opened wide;

Br3 A darkened sky, a plaintive cry,
A searching through the storm,
Warm arms around, companion found,
A haven, safe and warm;

v3 Please don't tremble so,
The world will work out right, I know,
Be brave, and feel your courage flow
Within this warm liason we hold here.
