v1 There is nothing quite as hairy,
No terror half as scary
As a bloke who treads unwary
Into love

v2 There's nothing quite as humbling,
No error quite as bumbling,
As some geyser blindly stumbling
Into love

Br1 No-one said to take it steady
Or spoke of any pitfalls up ahead,
Of bunkered traps to collar the unready,
Or snares or trips, or nooses overhead;

Br2 No-one mentioned to be careful,
Or offered up the usual sound advice
Of steps that should be tentative or prayerful, Trod with nerves of steel or heart of ice.

v3 There is no sight so appalling,
No spectacle so galling
As a poor fool dumbly falling
Into love
